Profile

The Education for Practice Institute (EFPI) was established in 2007 by Charles Sturt University to support the preparation of graduates for the workplace. EFPI works at multiple levels, including policy development, and strategic planning and through participation in a range of groups and committees, to enhance professional and practice-based education. EFPI conducts research to expand understanding of practice-based education and provides support and training to staff and research higher degree students interested in professional and practice-based education and professional practice.

Relevant Publications

Useful Links
